

Finance, Revenue, and Bonding Committee

Public Hearing: April 14, 2025

In Support of HB 7272 and HB 7273

Dear Co-Chair Senator Fonfara, Co-Chair Representative Horn, Ranking Member Senator Fazio, Ranking Member Representative Polletta, Vice Chair Senator Cabrera, Vice Chair Senator Miller, Vice Chair Representative Constantine, Vice Chair Representative Rader and members of the Finance, Revenue, and Bonding Committee,

My name is Tida Infahsaeng, and I serve as the Senior Director of Advocacy and Partnerships at United Way of Coastal and Western Connecticut (UWCWC). I am writing in strong support of HB 7272 and HB 7273.

As a proud member of both the CT Child Tax Credit Coalition and School Meals for All CT, we believe every child in Connecticut deserves the opportunity to thrive. That starts with access to the most fundamental building blocks: economic stability and nutritious food. Our shared goals — a fully refundable Child Tax Credit and universal no-cost school meals — help ensure all children have what they need to grow, learn, and succeed, while also strengthening local economies and reducing burdens on working families.

Support for HB 7272 — The Connecticut Child Tax Credit

Thank you for your commitment to advancing a permanent, fully refundable Child Tax Credit — one of the most effective tools we have to reduce child poverty, support working families, and build a stronger state economy.

A $600 per child refundable credit would deliver immediate relief to more than 550,000 children and 75% of families across the state. It's not just good policy — it's a smart investment, with an estimated 138% return for Connecticut's economy.

Connecticut is among the most expensive states to raise a family. According to the latest ALICE Report, a household with two adults, an infant, and a toddler must earn over $9,400 per month to cover basic needs — including $1,450 for food, $2,339 for child care, and $1,150 for housing. Yet, unlike most states, Connecticut taxes personal income without adjusting for family size — an outdated, inequitable approach that further strains working families.

At UWCWC, we serve 27 towns, where 42% of households — over 336,000 individuals — live at or below the ALICE threshold. These are working families who cannot afford the basics despite being employed. For them, the Child Tax Credit isn't just helpful — it's essential.

In Fairfield and Southern Litchfield Counties, more than 60,000 households would benefit directly. That means more children with nutritious meals, safe housing, quality child care — and parents with the financial breathing room to plan for their future.

Enclosed with this testimony are personal stories from families in our region. I urge you to read their words. This policy is not just about numbers — it's about people and the kind of future we want for Connecticut's children.

Support for HB 7273 — Universal No-Cost School Meals

I also urge you to support HB 7273, which would ensure that no child in Connecticut goes hungry and every student is ready to learn.

Universal no-cost school meals have been shown to reduce food insecurity, improve academic performance, and lower absenteeism, while eliminating stigma, shaming, and meal debt. According to the CDSE, every $1 invested in child nutrition generates $17 in economic activity — a strong return that benefits children, families, and communities alike.

No-cost school meals also provide critical economic relief to working families, especially ALICE families who fall into the gap between eligibility for free/reduced-price meals and the actual cost of living. These families are often left behind — forced to skip meals, accrue debt, or send children to school hungry.

For a family with two children, universal school meals can save approximately $2,400 per year — funds that can instead go toward rent, child care, or medical bills. Like the Child Tax Credit, school meals strengthen both child well-being and household stability. Together, these policies form a strong foundation for a healthier, more equitable Connecticut.

By endorsing HB 7272 and HB 7273, we are investing in a future where every child has the opportunity to thrive — and every family can meet their basic needs with dignity and stability.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Tida Infahsaeng
Senior Director of Advocacy and Partnerships
United Way of Coastal and Western Connecticut
